Living with Wolves Symposium a success

The Wyoming Animal Damage Management Board hosted the Living with Wolves Symposium in Sheridan, March 14 through 16.

The symposium focused on conflict resolution and management strategies, and gave the public an opportunity to learn about new techniques and the impacts of wolf management.

Approximately 160 people were in attendance, hearing various topics on wolf management from 18 different speakers from the United States and Canada. The overall goal of the event was to learn how other states and provinces are managing wolves in their current programs.

Copies of the proceedings may be ordered by visiting the ADMB website at www.wyadmb.com or calling (307) 777-6433 for an order form.

The Wyoming Animal Damage Management Program was created in 1999 by the legislature. It is administered by a 15-member board that was established for the purpose of mitigating damage caused to livestock, wildlife and crops by predatory animals, predacious birds and depredating animals.

In accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, special assistance or alternate formats will be made available for individuals with disabilities upon request in advance of the meeting.
